

The integrity of journalism and the dissemination of multiple viewpoints are draining steadily away in the United States, as corporate conglomerate media with nothing but dollar signs (and resulting political influence) in their eyes take over more and more sources of information, gravely endangering democracy. [Note the BBC's chief recent dismay at the blatant bias of major U.S. media in their coverage of the Iraq invasion.]

The FCC should be regulating communications for the benefit of the citizens of this country, NOT the corporations. Please vote AGAINST relaxing media ownership rules.
